To broaden my horizons, to strive for a greater depth, to listen carefully. Questioning you, your thoughts, your beliefs, I question myself, my thoughts, my beliefs. Striving against you, I seek to improve myself. Challenging you, I need to hear your reply. And the times we lay the books aside—I need to learn those times too. For becoming is in everything and being is always.

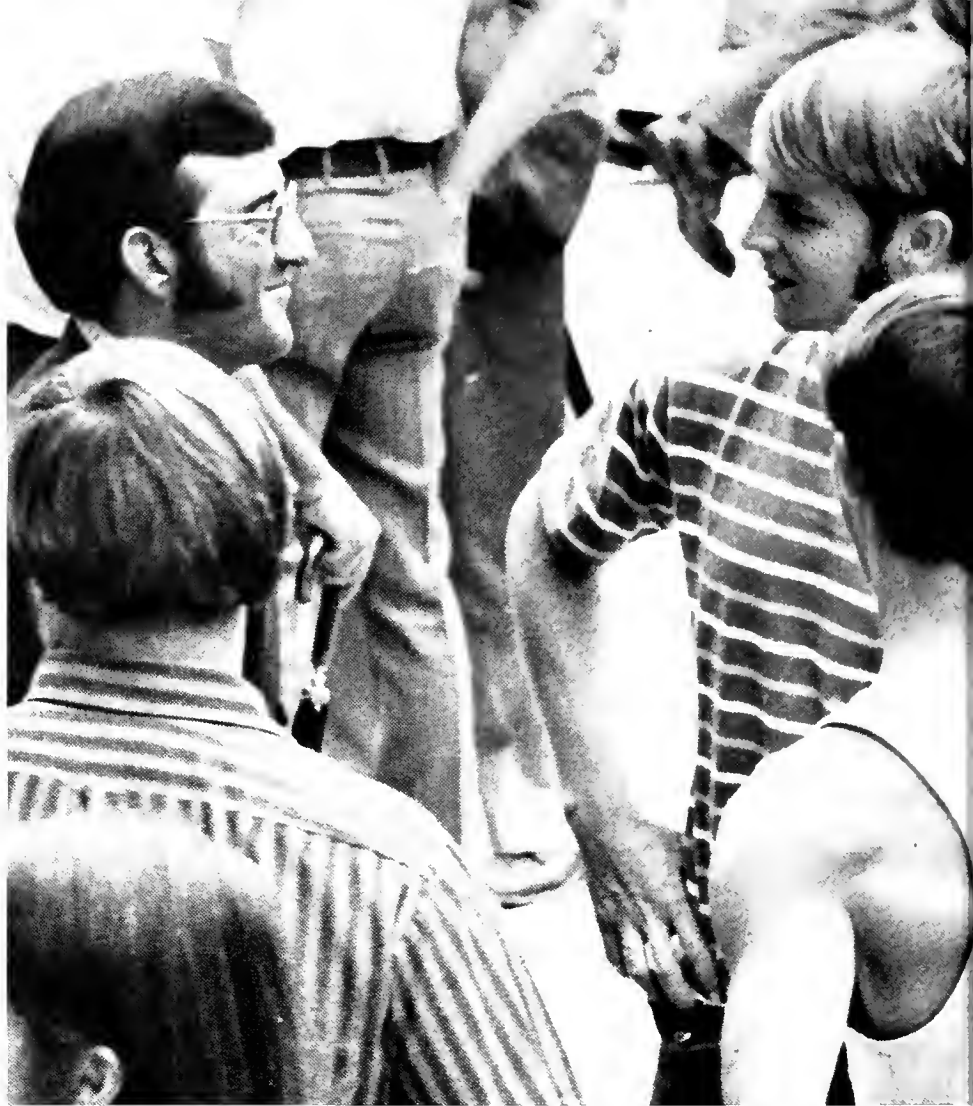

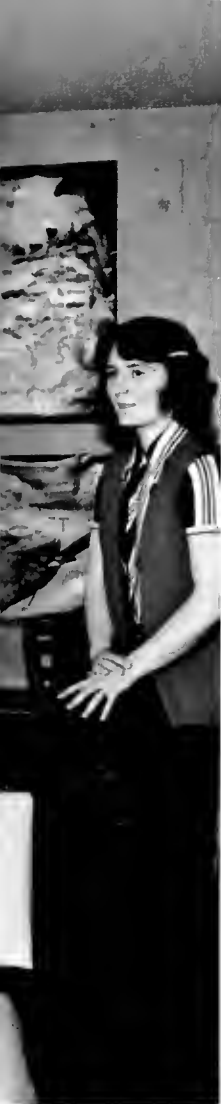

Constantly running a race against myself, I seek to improve my physical condition, my mental awareness, my varying perceptions of reality. The challenge of a performance enables me to seek for the fulfillment of my physical capabilities. The opportunity to watch you perform enables me to share in your frustration, joy, failure, and success. I ponder the paradox of working as a team—all of us striving for each other, yet each of us expressing his individuality. Always striving, always being, always becoming.

Exploring my box of spirituality—questioning, rejecting, accepting, learning, loving, becoming. I leave behind some ill-fitting rags; I taste a sweet wine; I cry over a God-man who used his blood to bleach my life. I rejoice in the victory of new eyes and the darkness of my soul is shattered by sunshine. Now I voice my delight.

We are geared to remember the experiences—but I want to remember you. I want to remember me. I am grateful that you spoke to me, shared with me, played with me, spent special times with me. But the times of being together were balanced by hours of separation. The silence drove me home. Together—the sharing and the solitude—helped me to become.

Be . . . coming is the essence of my existence. I seek my true self. In the fall of '72, my becoming brings me both pleasure and pain.

Week orients incoming frosh to college life

From the welcome of new students by President Rediger Sunday afternoon to the concert Saturday night, new student week was full of new experiences and new faces. Sunday marked the beginning for many as Taylor students. Although Taylor was new and unfamiliar, suddenly Monday afternoon it seemed like a haven as everyone was divided into groups and sent into the woods to spend the night. This proved to be a good means of meeting more new people. The major part of the week seemed to be spent taking tests. Friday night Taylor previewed some of the freshman talents. The Michael Johnson Concert Saturday night concluded New Student Week.

Although various talents were exhibited on Friday night, guitar music was performed the most.

Weekend creates enthusiasm

The theme of the 1972 Homecoming was "Life in Perspective." Festivities began with the production, "The Importance of Being Earnest." Friday night was highlighted by the crowning of Vicki Stockman as the 1972 Homecoming Queen by last year's queen Sandy Weis. Her court included Kari Knutson, Alison Garnes, Pam Ritchie, Candi Jacobsen, Vicki Ottoson, Danielle Messinger and Teri Wright. Following the coronation, a concert featuring the musical group "Love Song" was presented, and then an old-fashioned Ice Cream Parlor was held in the Dining Commons. Fortunately, the Saturday of Homecoming Week-end was one of the few sunny days in the fall. The day started off with the Homecoming Parade and was climaxed with a Trojan victory over Manchester.

Harriers take 7th consecutive conference title

Led by the outstanding individual efforts of junior Taylor Oliver, Taylor's 1972 cross country team continued its traditional domination of conference foes. Under the leadership of Coach George Glass, the Trojan harriers keyed for the HBCC meet and captured their seventh consecutive conference crown. Taylor also placed first in its own annual invitational and District 21 championships.

Individually, Taylor Oliver ran away with first place at Little State, HBC Conference, and finished 28th in National competition. Running close behind Oliver most of the season were juniors Brad Shrock, Allen Feeley, and Dave Whybrew. Freshmen Dave Lewis and Tim Reusser showed great potential as they consistently ran strong races. With the return of this year's first six men and the promise of talented prospects coming in, Taylor's cross country domination seems to be more than safe for one more season.

Taylor tennis men dominated their competition in devastating fashion. Totally "shutting out" their first six opponents, they gave up only six points in nine matches. The big surprise of the season was the team's failure to take a second consecutive HBCC championship. The Trojans hope to amend this defeat in national's competition.

The team was led by number one man and captain, Mike Server. The most valuable player was Chet Lesourd. Coach Sheldon Bassett is looking forward to next year's season in which his entire team will return.

Trojans incorporate triple option offense this year

With the return of several outstanding lettermen, many felt that the 1972 grid campaign might be the year Taylor would regain some of its lost football supremacy. Unfortunately a lack of proven talent at the "skill positions" seemed to stifle the Trojans and their new triple option offense. They finished third in conference play at 3-2-2 and 3-4-2 overall.

Taylor defense

Led by all-conference seniors Deni McBrier and Dana Sorenson, considered the best linebacking pair in Taylor football history, the tenacious Trojan defense thrived on checking the offense of their opponent week after week. McBrier's team leading total of 107 tackles, followed closely by Sorenson's 83, were major factors in Taylor's giving up only an average of 10 points per game. Also of vital significance was the play of all conference selections senior Ken Knipp (defensive back), juniors Paul Nitz (defensive end), and Steve Zimmerman (defensive back, punt returner). Defensive lineman of the year, senior "Snowball" King also brought the fans to their feet with his determined pursuit of opposing quarterbacks. Seniors McBrier, Sorenson, Knipp, and defensive halfbacks Dan Archer and Chip Wehling have all been starting since their freshman years.

Dana Sorenson refuses to give ground.

Trojan offense aids victory in Hanover game

The Trojans with their new offense seemed to have trouble "putting it all together." There were times when four year veteran quarterback Brad Gerlach ran well and passed successfully to senior Tom O'Brien (14 receptions) and sophomore Mike Rich. There were also times when the line opened gaping holes for the exciting breakaway runs of freshman Randy Walchle. Junior kicker Eric Turner had a good season, leading the team in scoring with 23 points. But the vaunted running attack of sophomore all-conference star Norm Sweeting and junior Rick Minnich never developed due to nagging injuries as was the case of four-year veteran guard Paul Richards. Another four-year starter, Terry Metzger, split the season at quarterback and wide receiver, never really playing long enough at either position to feel comfortable. Despite the fact that injuries and lack of consistency at the "skill positions" seemed to thwart offensive efforts, Taylor played some excellent football games. Highlights would include the 17-7 Homecoming defeat of Manchester, a 16-10 defeat of a tough Earlham eleven and a very satisfying 24-21 final game decision over Hanover.

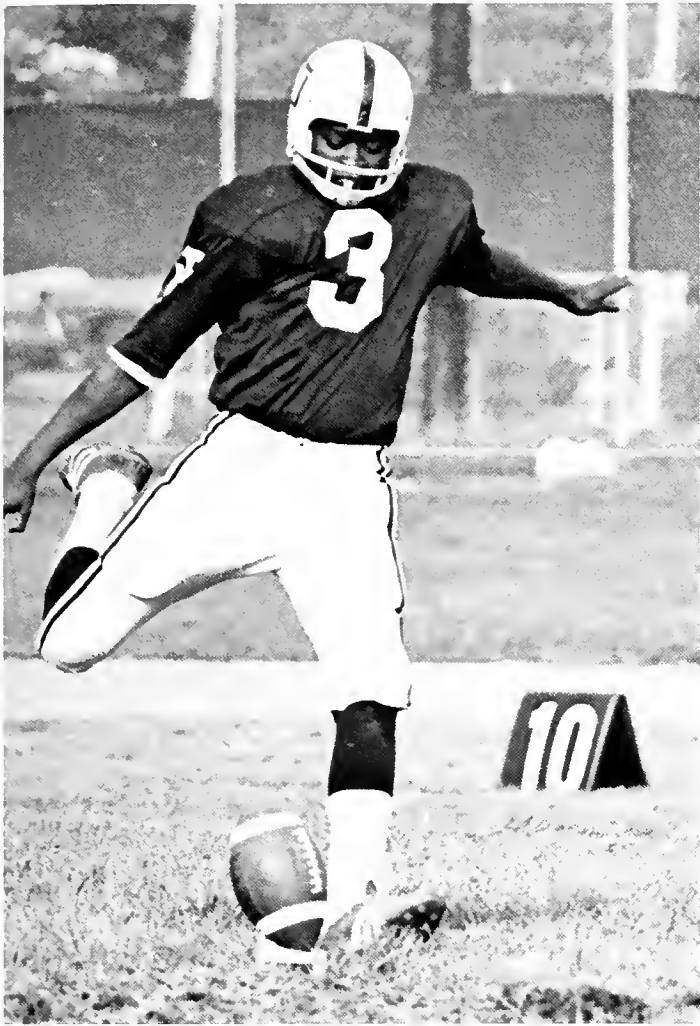

Other graduating seniors include the exciting soccer-style kicker Tadi Wantwadi, end Bob Bakke, tackle Mark Marchak, defensive back Doug Arnold, and flanker Brian Scholl. Even though athletes like McBrier, who will be seeking employment with a professional football team, and Sorenson, who will begin training for the Olympics, will be gone, the prospects for next season are not bleak. With some luck and a good recruiting year, the 1973 football season will be a pleasant surprise to many.

Drama groups present plays during autumn

During the fall season, talented Taylor students display dramatic ability. Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" opened the season by portraying comedy and confusion. Then came a dramatization of Sir Thomas More's struggle in "A Man for all Seasons."

One-act plays allow student directors to use their ability. The first in the series, "Fox in a Fix," was directed by Diane Oman. Sue Van Poucker chose to direct "A Visitor from Forest Hills." Two other plays were also presented under the directions of Laurretta Buhler and Jim Clark.

Special weeks in fall provide time for worship

During each semester, amid the shuffle of books and classes, there is a time set aside for Spiritual Emphasis Week. The students, faculty and community residents gather to find direction and interaction from a speaker. In the fall, Dr. James Massey, the campus minister at Anderson College, was the guest lecturer. Besides the nightly meetings in the gym, dorm meetings and discussions allowed students to seek Dr. Massey's guidance and help.

Missionary Conference, which featured twenty representatives from mission boards throughout the world, helped students to realize the claim Christ has on their lives. This claim brings many responsibilities which fit into the theme of "What the World Needs Now." Dr. Tokatloglou was the main speaker, representing the Officers Christian Union. There were three parts to the Missionary Conference: meetings and discussion, prayer, and financial support. This year, the student project for missions will be to support a children's camp in Chile, South America.

Taylor parents make fall visit to busy campus

Despite dismal weather, parents anxiously ventured to Taylor's campus to view several aspects of student life. In addition to warm welcomes at registration, parents were treated to a variety of activities. Lively discussions on "Taylor in the World" were organized along with exciting overviews of the Holy Land and the Munich Olympiad. Taylor's gridmen kept parents and fans in suspense while playing Georgetown. Parents also enjoyed a campus performance of "A Man for all Seasons."

SUB presents various events for enjoyment

The Student Union Board, more commonly referred to as SUB, offers a wide variety of cultural, social, and recreational activities for the students. The board seeks to provide a well rounded program for college leisure life.

This year some of the activities included a rodeo involving students and several concerts by such people as Larry Norman, Danny Lee and the Children of Truth, First Gear, and The Sound Generation.

Fastbreaking Trojans foil preseason predictions

Led by the scoring of Tim Rietdorf (19.6), Gary Friesen (19.4), Randy Aalbrektse (16.2) and Ed Gomez (15.3), the Trojans finished 18-12. They played an exciting, fast break game of basketball as evidenced by their 86.1 per game average.

Sophomore Gary Friesen who led the conference in rebounding (15.4) and set a school record for field goal percentage (.623), was elected all-conference, all-district 21, and NAIA honorable mention All-American. Seniors Rietdorf and Aalbrektse both had outstanding seasons, bringing Trojan fans to their feet with their shooting, passing, and defense. "Go-Go" Gomez amazed fans with his quickness and leaping ability. Junior Joe Manifold provided brute strength under the boards as Taylor's fifth starter and freshman Sparky Renaker showed signs of potential greatness. Coach Odle is optimistic about future seasons with the return of several excellent underclassmen.

Grapplers upset favorites to win conference

The 1972-73 Trojan wrestling season was highlighted by the capture of the Hoosier Buckeye College Conference crown. Wrestling as underdogs, Taylor used superior depth to upset the favorites, Anderson College and Defiance College.

Led by senior All-American Dana Sorenson the Trojans completed a 10-5 dual meet record and performed excellently at Carthage College Invitational, the Indiana Central tourney, and the Conference meet.

Other senior wrestlers include Mark Marchak, Craig Seltzer, and Doug Arnold. Marchak completed his four year wrestling career as a 190 pounder-heavyweight with a 15-10 record and a second place finish in conference. Seltzer wrapped up his career with a third place conference finish, while Arnold took third in districts.

He captured the championship in every major meet he wrestled including Little State and the Wheaton Invitational. He set a new record for total points scored with 135. He wrestled probably one of the most physically and emotionally stirring matches in the history of Taylor wrestling to capture the 158 pound conference crown.

Freshman 118 pounder Steve Muterspaw was given the Most Improved Wrestler award as he finished well enough to wrestle in national's competition. Another outstanding freshman was 150 pound conference champion Cecil Bergen. Junior John Marchak also wrestled well when not injured.

Although Coach Jarman will feel the loss of his seniors, there is much talent remaining, plus a good recruiting year promises to make the Trojans one of the top small college wrestling powers in the midwest.

The General Plattoff Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers appeared in concert in Maytag gymnasium this winter. The chorus members were dressed in the old military uniforms of the Cossack soldiers and performed various types of songs including Cossack battle songs and dances. They also presented the authentic dances of the Cossack regiments, national dances and the Cossack Sword Dances. This concert was sponsored by the Taylor Concert Lecture Series.

Dickens' story gives theme for winter banquet

"A Christmas Carol," Taylor's annual winter banquet, once again took on a traditional atmosphere. The Dining Commons was decorated throughout, with the 25-foot Christmas tree as the focal point. The entertainment of the evening was presented by singers Jack Ross and Woody Bowles.

Rounding of student life is a responsibility of SUB. Entertainment by talented artists allows an exposure to different ideas.

Rick Nelson and the Stone Canyon Band warmed the audience with their mild country folk and rock talents. The Brothers entreated listeners to an experience in gospel rock which reflects a quality expressive of Black America. Johnson and Drake rendered a rock sound of sophisticated style.

Elements vary Campus habits

Although tired of the overabundant fall precipitation, students were expectant and saddened by the sparcity of its appearance during the winter in the form of snow. While the unusual weather limited the ice skating and sledding season, students took advantage of it by bicycling and roller skating. Some students had a chance to enjoy regular winter weather by going on the SUB sponsored ski trip to Colorado during interterm break.

The changing weather gave students an opportunity to practice skills not associated with winter.

The Cultural Events Committee and SGO seek to provide student awareness in a cultural world. The committee exposes students to a spectrum of speakers, films, music, art and spiritual activities. The speakers portrayed the theatre, media, social comments and the power of the Holy Spirit. The films of Richard the III and the life story of Dr. Martin Luther King were presented. The Ball State Singers, Collegium Musicum, and the Ft. Wayne Woodwind Quartet gave a wider range of music styles. Steve Zehr and Kenneth Drake presented music recitals while the art department hosted an exhibit by Harry Davis, an architectural painter.

Freedom is key word of 1973 youth conference

What it means to be "Free in the Son" was interpreted by the guest speaker, Josh McDowell, an international speaker and Christian activist. He acts as a traveling representative for Campus Crusade for Christ and has spoken on more than 400 campuses in 35 countries. Youth Conference not only followed in lecture session but incorporated the four-way context of Taylor life: spiritual, physical, mental and social. Group discussions were led by Taylor students on topics of their choosing. Movies and music tied together the mental and physical senses of freedom. The coordination for the weekend was under the direction of a 32 member Youth Conference Cabinet and numerous prayer efforts.

Students could also view offices such as ILIUM, ECHO, SUB and SGO on the second floor of the building.

Four new ping-pong tables, new paddles, a new pool table and 12 new cue sticks were added to the student union. The opening of reading and listening lounges provided added areas for studying and socializing. The closing times for the student union and grill were lengthened to fulfill the needs of the students for a "place to go" after closing time of the dorms.

Dorm living is Exposure for College action

Dorm life is a conglomerant of action. During the breaks in the nightly studying, a young man's fancy turns to a quick game of cards, hall frizbee with a unique set of homemade rules, or rapping about the latest sport. Usually most of the time is spent between intramural sports and the visits to other dorms—probably East, South, and MCW. But when in their own abode, the guys find there is always someone to make a little action with to liven-up the other guys. The experience of dorm life provides the action and reaction of becoming familiar with knowing how to adjust and deal with different situations and people. It is an action in college growth.

There always seems to be time for a few laughs from a Mad magazine.

In their dorm room, Tex Shockey, Willard Billey, and Dan Chittick complete plans for their trip west during spring break.

Sometimes tension can only be released by turning things upside-down.

When the dorm gets to be too much, relaxation is found at the stables.

Ping-pong and Coke are provided in the dorm to keep students busy during their free time.

Lynn Paulsen and Jo Shaffer believe that dorm life includes learning to share everything with a roommate.

Girls cultivate various experiences in dorm life

Dorm life for the female consists of popcorn parties, ring downs, and talk sessions, along with many other activities converting college life into a unique collage of experiences.

Learning to relate to and getting along with a roommate involves more than merely growing to understand another individual. It is also an attempt to interpret oneself. Although many times a person despairs over the lack of privacy, there are moments when it is comforting to know someone is willing to understand.

Freshman art major Emily Forbes finds her talent useful not only in class projects, but also in decorating her dorm room.

To many girls spring includes losing the few extra pounds gained during winter and getting in shape for summer activities.

Long hours of hard studying go to students' heads.

Fourth Wisconsin girls plan an April Fool's joke for hall mate.

Apartment life allows greater Student freedoms, responsibility

Apartment life offers independence. Differing from the resident halls in degrees of quietness, distance from campus, and increased privacy, the apartment dweller accepts the responsibility of preparing his own meals, managing the budget, and keeping the "home away from home" clean.

For the married students, the apartment type of life is their first home together. Here they must keep on top of their school work plus maintain a close money situation while doing the usual household chores. The relief comes in having someone to lean on when the going gets hard.

Girls sometimes help the guys by cleaning.

Apartment life affords Taylor men the opportunity to experiment with their talents in the kitchen.

After John and Cathy Moore do some of the apartment chores, they can relax and spend the evening watching television.

Taylor's track Team captures Conference title

Taylor continues to dominate its HBCC track foes. While capturing their second consecutive conference championship, the young, depth-laden Trojans scored 156½ points, broke four conference records, and captured five first places.

Taylor Oliver, who set numerous track and meet records throughout the season, captured the mile run in a record 4:14.2 and the 880 run in 1:56.3. Steve Officer was also a triple winner as he triple jumped a record 47'3¼", long jumped 23'¼" and was in the 440 relay. Dana Sorensen broke the 200 foot barrier with a record toss of 200-6½ in the javelin. Randy Moore, Joel Johnson, and Steve Officer toured the track in a record setting 42.7.

The Trojans made an excellent showing in the Little State meet with a third place finish, only thirteen points behind the leader. The team finished with a 4-2 record in dual and triangular meets for the season.

Coach Glass again was selected Coach of the Year, and there were several awards given by the team. Ted Bowers was selected captain, Steve Officer received the most valuable field events man and the greatest individual effort award, Taylor Oliver received the most valuable running events award and was nominated for the greatest and most consistent award. The most meet points were scored by Steve Officer with a total of 168¼.

The team will be losing only three seniors: Ted Bowers (intermediate hurdles), Paul King and Dana Sorensen (javelin). Everyone else will be back and the Trojans will undoubtedly continue to reign as a conference powerhouse again.

Taylor Oliver captures first place in the mile and the 880 in the HBCC meet.

Freshman Randy Walchle strains to clear the 12 foot barrier in the pole vault.

Alfred Thompson settles into a smooth flowing long distance pace.

Steve Officer captures first place in the long jump with a leap of over 23 feet.

Bill Thompson receives congratulations and trophy from Dean Zimmerman for becoming a state medalist for the second consecutive year.

Taylor University is fast building a golf powerhouse. In the last three years the golf team has captured the conference title once and finished second the other two times. This year was no exception as Taylor took the HBCC championship by eleven strokes and missed a trip to national competition by only five strokes as they finished second to Indiana State in NAIA state play.

The HBCC all-conference selections included Curt Knorr, also voted the team's MVP, and John Ostlund. Nominated to the NAIA all-district team was captain Bill Thompson, who tied for state medalist at 144, John Ostlund at 147, and Curt Knorr at 147. Bill Thompson also had the season best score at 69 in district play.

The golfers finished with a 6-3-1 dual record, competing remarkably well with larger state schools in tournaments. Taylor played exceptionally well to capture its own invitational tournament.

Although four seniors will graduate, Bill Thompson, Randy Berry, Denny Thompson, and Jeff Rocke, Coach Odle is excited about the remaining nucleus and a good freshman class coming in.

Tom Holmes is putting the ball in anticipation of a par for the hole.

Senior Dave Freckleton does outstanding relief work for Trojans.

Versatile star, Stan Frantz, leads the team in batting average (.372) and home runs (5) while compiling a 5-1 pitching record.

As evidenced by their excellent team batting average (.296), hitting was the Trojan strong point all season.

Trojan hitters average seven runs per game

Senior Rick Garton is the Trojan pitching ace, as evidenced by his fine record.

Taylor's 1973 baseball team hit for a remarkable .296 team batting average. Scoring nearly seven runs a game, the team finished 18-14-1 overall and 7-5 in HBCC play.

Senior Rick Garton led the pitching staff with a 6-2 record, a 1.96 ERA, and innings pitched with 55. Senior Randy Aalbregtse led the team with 49 strikeouts in 47 innings pitched. Stan Frantz also pitched some excellent games with a 5-1 record and 40 strikeouts.

Hitting was the strong point of the Trojan's attack. Led by Stan Frantz (.372) and closely followed by Brad Gerlach (.348), Randy Clarkson (.346), Rich Bowden (.339), Dave Griffie (.333) and Doug Rupp (.326) the Trojan hitters sent many a pitcher to an early shower.

Pitching depth, timely hitting, and inconsistent defense seemed to be the only things holding the team back. In NAIA district 21 play, the Trojans won three games before being ousted by a tough Marian nine. Although losing eight seniors, Coach Krause is optimistic about next year.

Off campus wins intramural league championship

Soccer is a game of skill and endurance as many teams quickly realized. 3rd Morris put these traits into practice enough to win the league title.

Taylor University provides an outstanding intramural program. Setting up supervised activities in such sports as football, soccer, basketball, softball, and wrestling, the program allows for student release of pent-up frustrations on the athletic field. The spirit of competition is fierce and the play is often for keeps. Strong ties of unity are developed and a sense of teamwork unfolds as teams vie for a league championship. Thus, Taylor strives to provide education in the realm of the physical as well as the mental, social, and spiritual.

'Diversity' is main ingredient in rec. program

Taylor students can usually find a variety of ways to amuse themselves in their spare time. The familiar cry of "I don't have anything to do!" could be heard all over campus. In spite of the complaints, there really are a lot of activities going on all the time. SUB sponsored back-packing and rapelling trips to Wisconsin and various parts of Indiana proved to be a successful diversion for many. Becoming involved in the planning of campus activities such as the County Fair, Taylathon, etc. also took up some of that "extra time" for quite a few others. The time that remained was usually taken up with friends in the dorm, popping popcorn, playing cards, or just sitting around "shoot-ing it."

Trying out the new rapelling equipment teaches students to trust.

Some students decide that sitting around in the dorm wasn't all that bad.

Spring's Taylathon brings relaxation, excitement

Spring is the Taylathon. It spurs a keen competition between classes. The events are not limited to only athletics or male competition. The couples baseball game requires a male and female to hold hands while playing. The pie eating contest brings both ecstasy and misery. Sack races and wheelbarrow races provide a comic but straining event. The activities are then highlighted by a Bike-a-thon. Then, talking on assigned topics by a cast of extemporaneous speakers starts a chain of mental processes and a chain of laughter that brings student delight. This spring saw a damping spirit to the event with the early morning rain that flowed into puddles of doubt and awaiting. But the festivities came to a glorious end with the tired contestants, a happy crowd of Taylor students, the victorious junior class, and expectations and preparation for the events of next year's Taylathon.

The rain seemed to make no difference to many of the Bike-a-thon supporters.

Participants in the sack race get ready for the event.

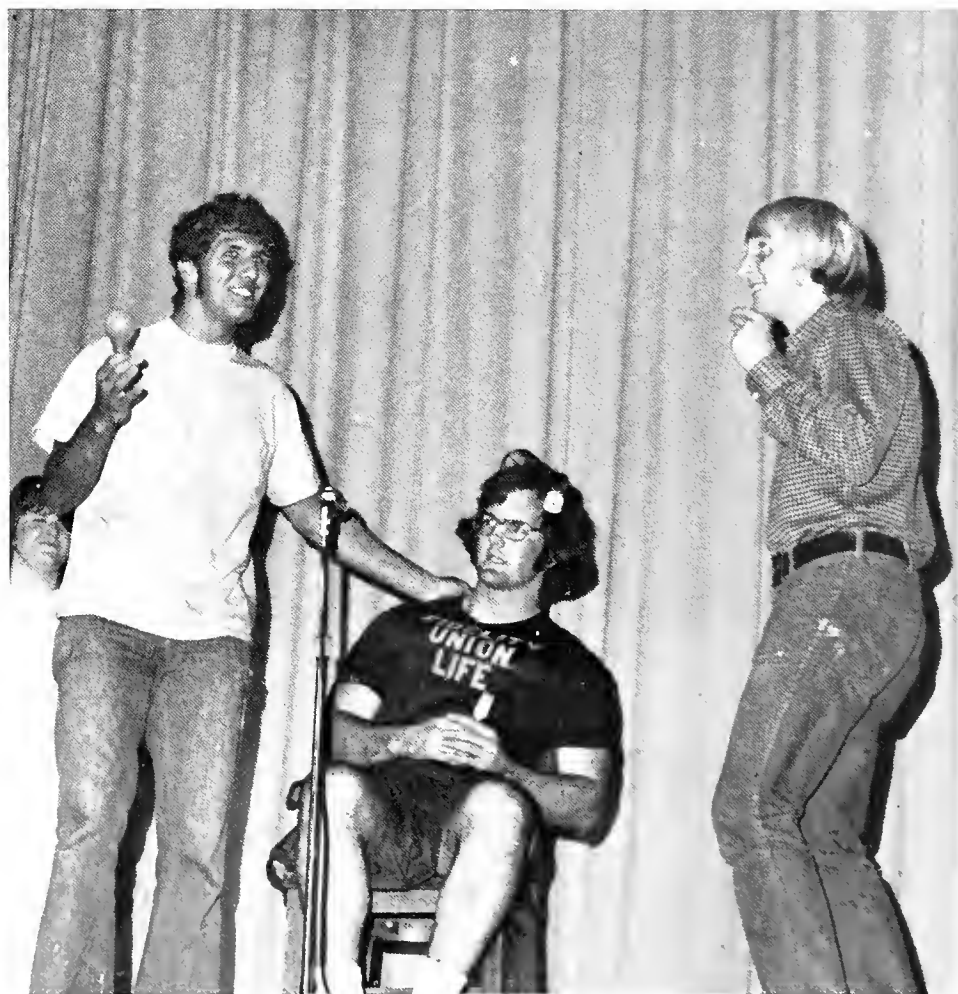

One of the most amusing events proved to be the pie-eating contest.

Students gather in the morning to support their classmates who were participants in the wheelbarrow race.

Banquets, Baccalaureate highlight weekend

Strong gusty winds and hot sunny skies characterized Taylor's graduation exercises held outdoors this year on the TU football field. Although rain threatened periodically throughout the day, it held off until that night as parents and friends gathered for the Baccalaureate Service and the Commencement Convocation on Sunday, June 3, 1973.

Dr. Walter H. Judd, former congressman and missionary statesman, delivered the Baccalaureate address, "Press On," at the 10 a.m. service.

Preceding the Sunday Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises, a graduating senior recognition dinner, hosted by the Alumni Association, was held in the Dining Commons, Saturday, June 2, for seniors, parents, faculty, and alumni.

Graduating seniors were guests of the Alumni Association at the dinner which welcomed them into membership in the Association. This year the Alumni Association gave a special TU paperweight to each Taylor graduate. Earlier in the day Alumni had met for class fellowship and for an alumni luncheon. The oldest classes represented were 1913, 1914, 1915, 1917.

Degrees were granted to 266 students, including December and August graduates, at the 3 p.m. Commencement Convocation, Sunday, June 3. "A Perspective for the Whole Person" was the title of the address by Kenneth H. Knipp, graduating senior, representing members of the class of 1973.

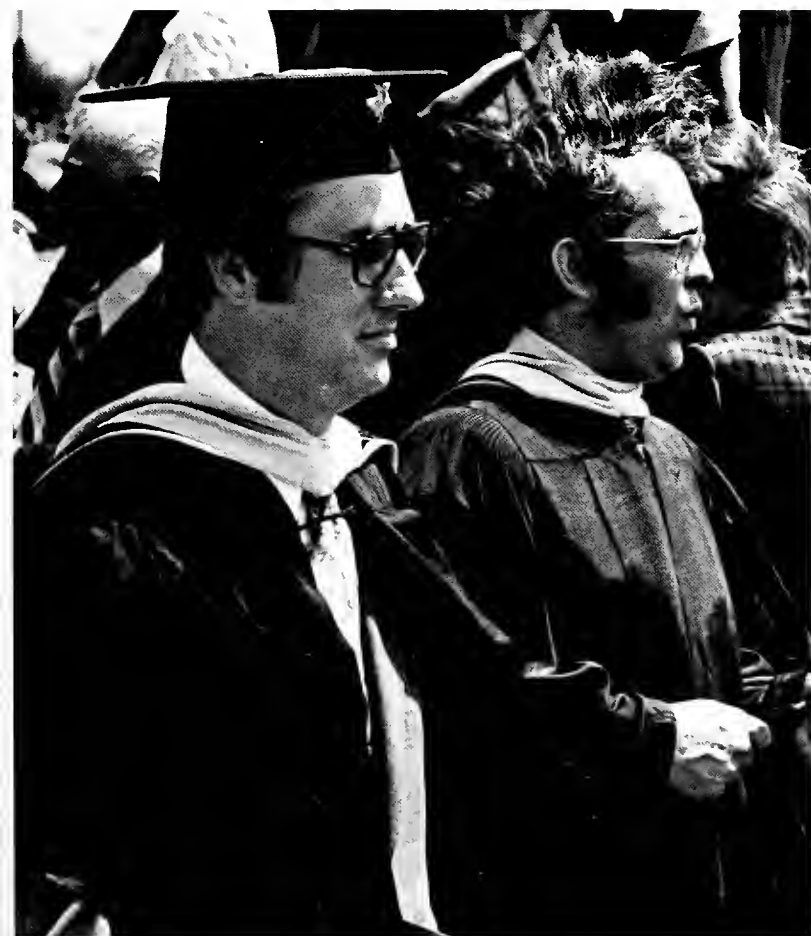

Dr. Milo A. Rediger, Taylor president, conferred the degrees. Diplomas were presented by Dr. Gordon G. Zimmerman, academic dean and vice-president for academic affairs, E. Stanley Banker, registrar, and Dr. Rediger. The Taylor orchestra provided music for both Baccalaureate and Commencement.

Students enjoy opportunity for relaxed study

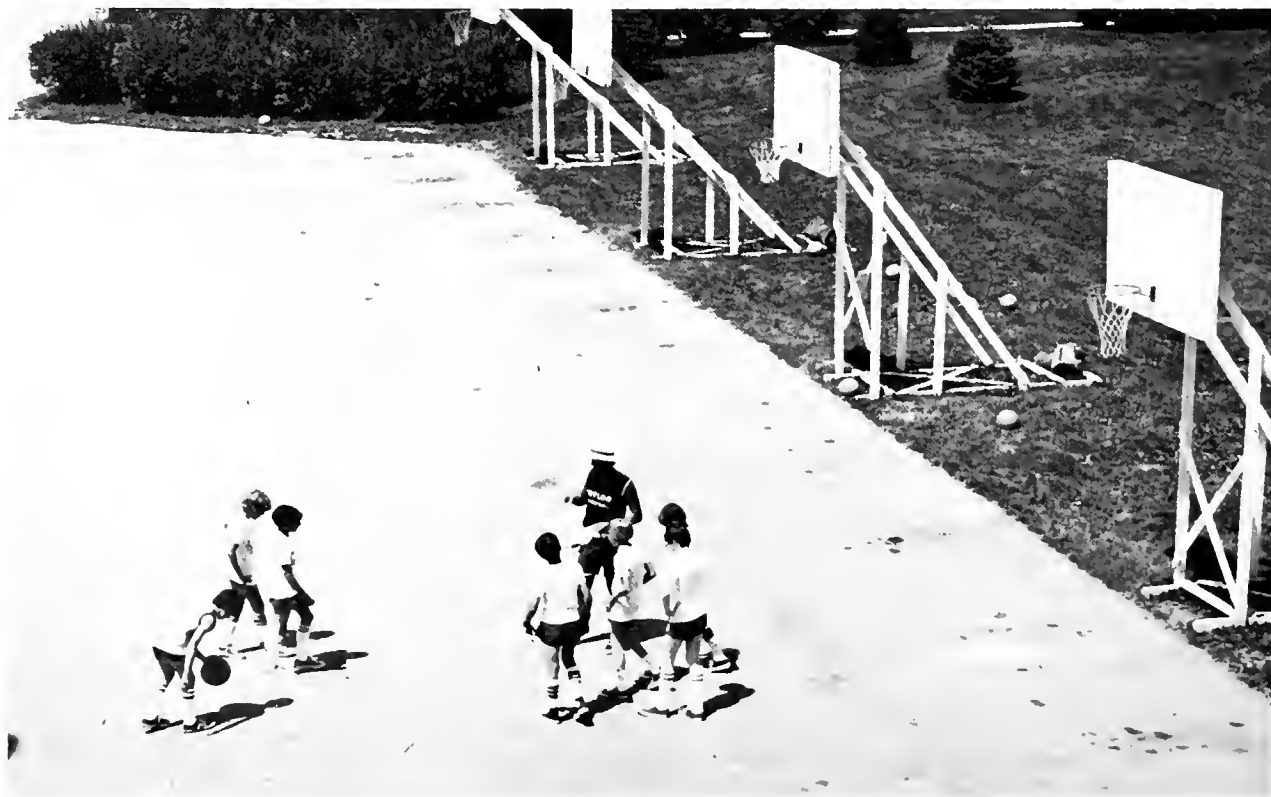

More than 270 students took advantage of courses offered in many areas during the five-week summer session June 18-July 20. In addition to the regular schedule of courses, summer session provided special opportunities for some. The Credits-in-Escrow program enabled outstanding high school seniors to earn college credit, to be given to them after high school graduation. COPE assisted students entering college to make the transition between high school and college.

Students worshipped at twice-a-week chapel and enjoyed the air-conditioned Student Union and the warm sun at the lake. Ronald Keller, director of admissions, served as director of summer session.

Other activities on the campus this summer included a basketball camp for boys, a girls camp, and a national cheerleading clinic.

Summer school students make use of the TU Bookstore to buy the needed books and supplies for classes and labs.

Basketball camp perfects skills through helpful instruction and many hours of practice.

Swimming at the Taylor Lake gives summer school students and campers a chance to cool off and relax.

During warm weather, students find the shade of a large tree a comfortable place to study.

Despite 80° weather, avid tennis players manage "to get in a few games."

GROUPS

The times of our coming together to work, to play, to become one en-masse to achieve our purpose. All of these shape my being someone who needs and helps and survives.

Executive council helps carry Out student government plans

The Executive Council is a branch of Student Government Organization which helps to carry out Senate legislation. It also serves in the capacity of an advisory board made up of various committee chairmen. Each year the council helps with the publication of the Who's New and initiates a verse or thought for the year. Contributions included money for the Upland Toy Library operated through Kiddie Kampus and money and books for Africa, a project launched by a Taylor student. The purchase of tents for student use and a weekend backpacking program were other services extended.

Literary groups Provide variety Of experiences

Growth through involvement develops student capacities. The national honorary journalism society, Alpha Phi Gamma, encourages student involvement in student publications. There are over one hundred recognized chapters on college campuses. These student publications comply with national requirements for outstanding work. The main objective of Chi Alpha Omega is the promotion of Christian scholarship. On Taylor's campus, this honor society selects the top ten percent of the senior class and the top five percent of the junior class for membership. Writer's Club is a literary organization for students interested in creative writing.

Skills grow in Understanding Other cultures

French, Spanish, German, and International clubs serve as opportunities for students to better acquaint themselves with the languages and customs of the countries involved. These students are exposed to many social, spiritual, and academic problems, thus providing skills in comparing these aspects to their own countries. The clubs not only provide foreign study but also build lasting friendships.

Campus Groups Help Improve Taylor's Unity

The steering committee for the 1972 Homecoming, "Life in Perspective," was involved in months of careful planning and preparation to make the weekend a success. Who's New contains pictures of the new freshmen and transfer students plus important information for all students. Seniors chosen for Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges were selected upon the recommendations of seniors, faculty, and Student Life Committee. Students can become involved in the community through the outreach of the Community Action Council which sponsors Good News Clubs and the Boys Home.

Political, economic involvement Demonstrates student concern

Campaigns, 18-year old voting, registration, Democrats, banners, Republicans, conventions—these are all common words to the Young Republicans and Young Democrats. They were active on campus during the busy 1972 Presidential election year. Each group has made it possible for students to meet various governmental candidates and to discuss important issues at hand.

Another organization of Taylor's campus which provided contact with professionals in the field is the Business Club. It is designed to convey information and opportunity in the business world to Taylor students.

SEA provides Knowledge in School trends

One of the largest clubs on campus is SEA or Student Education Association. SEA is an organization, meeting once a month, for students interested in the teaching profession. This year, SEA introduced seminars discussing such topics as "Detection and Correction of Speech Problems" and "Computers in Teaching." The newest event this year was the media fair. It introduced new teaching devices and equipment useful to a teacher in the classroom.

Although the yearbook is published only once a year, the ILIUM staff works throughout the year to meet various deadlines.

'Change' is key word in format of 1973 Ilium

The Ilium has undergone several changes in format this year under the editorship of Marilyn Sinclair. The cover design became much more informal in appearance, along with the rest of the book. Sports, student life, and activities were combined chronologically into autumn, winter and spring sections to make it easier to follow the year's activities. The time of distribution of the book was also changed from spring to fall. This enabled the Ilium to cover the entire school year through commencement exercises. A shift to a new style of management was experienced this year. Instead of two co-editors, the task was assigned to one person, the editor-in-chief. With this type of setup, added responsibilities were given to each member of the Ilium staff. After much hard work, the 1973 ILIUM became a reality.

Alpha Pi Iota is a club in which members plan to further their education in the health sciences. At their monthly meetings speakers talk on their field of medicine, advise on applying to medical schools, and notify students of openings.

Science Club is more general in its outlook and is open to all students. Speakers deal with such topics as they relate to Christianity. Meetings serve as a time of enlightenment and learning outside of the classroom.

The Religious Drama Company, under the direction of Alan Goetchus, performed Christ in the Concrete City and Sign of Jonah. Besides numerous Sunday performances they went on a Spring tour covering much of Indiana. The purpose of the Trojan Players is to "enable members, through the study and production of drama, to enlarge their understanding of both the individual and group struggles of man and to strengthen their awareness of the full meaning of the Christian way of life." The group publicizes campus theatrical events. To qualify for membership a student must have been in either two major productions or one major and two minor productions. ECHO views World Events In perspective

This year the ECHO staff, under the leadership of executive editors, Janis Bragan (first semester), and Kathi Kiel (second semester), strived to increase the coverage of classes and other campus events as well as state, national and international news. The ECHO presented these events to the student body in such a way as to emphasize their significance to the individual.

First semester, publications editors attended the Associated Collegiate Press Association convention in New York City. Editors were able to pick up many new and different ideas to use on the ECHO.

Besides putting together a ten page paper at Homecoming and Youth Conference, the ECHO staff and the Ilium staff co-sponsored an open reception following the Harry Reasoner lecture.

Kathi Kiel served as editor-in-chief of the ECHO for second semester.

Staff members put much time and effort into writing and rewriting their stories.

Athletic organizations serve to bring Physical Education majors and minors together for fellowship and athletic involvement. T-Club is a service organization which helps sponsor athletic events. Being Big Brothers to young boys in the surrounding community is only one of their many projects. To join the club, prospective members must letter in at least one sport and go through a series of initiation procedures. Women's Recreation Association is for female students interested in athletic competition in all sports. Besides having a Fall retreat at Epworth Forest, PEMM club (physical education majors and minors) sponsors athletic events such as the ISU Women's Gymnastic Team and the Taylathon.

Fellowshipping

Basic need of Christian Life

"Free in the Son" was this year's Youth Conference theme. Youth Conference Cabinet is composed of dedicated students who make it possible for hundreds of high school students to visit the campus and to experience the freedom Christ can give. Taylor World Outreach, Christian Action Fellowship, and Inter-arsity are organized to reach others for Christ. The TWO cabinet also makes it possible for students to spend a summer in foreign countries around the world. CAF meets weekly for Christian fellowship and Bible study. Inter-arsity's main emphasis is missions and the preparation of Missionary Conference. These organizations are concerned with spreading Christian love.

SGO emphasizes involvement

Under the leadership of Dave and Diane Oman, a brother and sister team, Student Government Organization has endeavored to meet individual student needs. Student services were expanded to include refrigerator rentals, car wash supplies and typewriter cleaning. The purchase of a new van and an ice machine for the new student center were further contributions. SGO works for the improvement of policies for such problems as the parking situation to library hours. Special speakers "Bud" Hillis and Reid Buckley sponsored by SGO spoke on relevant political issues. The senate is composed of two members from each dorm who work on academic policies, general needs and changes. Senators attend faculty meetings and also head up various committees such as elections, driving regulations, and academics.

The actual board was made up of nine Taylor students each having a certain area of interest and a committee to help him plan events in that area. The Special Events Committee was responsible for setting up concerts, the Weekends committee for movies, Cultural Events for special speakers, the House Committee for the student center, and Recreation for the rappelling and spelunking expeditions. Board members were chosen by the SUB president and vice-president in the spring of 1972 for the 1973 academic year. Committee members were then selected by the nine-member Board.

Rick Nelson performs in Maytag as one of the guests brought in by SUB.

Student welfare responsibility of campus leaders

An effective link between the students and the administration is found in the concerned efforts of the interclass council, class officers, and personnel assistants. They work to achieve communication about unexpected problems and to correct misunderstandings between classes and administration policies. Class officers, elected by the student body, not only make up interclass council, but also organize projects and activities related to their respective classes. Personnel assistants work with students in their residence halls to settle disputes and problems within the dorm. Through this service, better relations are obtained.

Musical organizations present Spectrum of high quality music

Obtaining a better understanding of professionalism in the field of music is a primary function of the Music Club. Educators and musicians speak on instrumental and choral music and its relationship to education. The club is exclusively for music majors. The Taylor Orchestra has had numerous engagements. Besides having both a winter and spring tour in school assemblies and churches, they have played for many campus activities. The quality of the orchestra has improved due to the use of more challenging music. The TU Band has sponsored several unique events this year. They brought in different high school bands for football half-time performances. They also had a concert at the Taylor lake. The band also accompanied the Ted Nichols' cantata, "He is Forever." John Brane, band director, led the spring tour in the Akron, Ohio area.

Taylor vocal groups require Talented, dedicated performers

The chorale, under the direction of Charles Sims, is a vocal group whose music is entirely religious. Spring tour performances were in Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Michigan. A number of the selections used guitar, violin, flute or drums for accompaniment. Taylor Singers is a small group which performed choral works from each of the classical periods, including some American folk song arrangements.

Oratorio is a large group open to any student with an interest in vocal music. In addition to performing the "Messiah" by Handel at Christmas, they gave a spring concert. Selections included "Benedicite" by Ralph Vaughn Williams and "Symphony of Psalms" by Igor Stravinsky, both based on the book of Psalms. Dr. Philip Kroeker is director of both the Taylor Singers and the Oratorio.

Chorale: Row 1: J. Scherling, M. Fivecoate, J. Flaherty, L. Alford, J. Briner, M. Roush, L. Herli, C. Hoffman. Row 2: D. Jackson, S. Frazier, B. Houk, C. Pearson, J. Kirkpatrick, P. Harris, K. PEOPLE

People. Needing and wanting and helping. All of us coming together and going apart—sometimes we touch and laugh and sometimes we separate and go alone. And each of us struggles with our being.

Council helps President plan Taylor's future

Dr. Milo A. Rediger, President of Taylor, is now in his thirtieth year of service to the university. He first came to Taylor as a student in 1937 and was graduated with the class of 1939. He returned in 1943 as a Professor of Philosophy and Religion. He was appointed Dean of the Faculty in 1945 and became President in 1965.

The Administrative Council consists of the President, the President's Administrative Assistant and the four Vice Presidents representing the following major functional areas of the university: Academic Affairs, Business Affairs, Student Affairs, and Development.

David E. Klopfenstein, Director of Student Development; Basil Dempsey, Director of Campus Security; Joe W. Romine, Director of the Student Union; Joseph L. Fritzsche, Director of Financial Aid; William J. Hill, Director of Student Ministries

Charles C. Page, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds; Paul G. Rickner, Housekeeping Manager; Wendell G. Fisher, Print Shop Manager

Diverse offices Develop Taylor

The Business Affairs area provides the service and support necessary to keep the university running smoothly. The role of the staff involves everything from preparing 760,000 meals per year to maintaining 160 acres of property on which $11,000,000 of buildings and equipment are located. Staff involvement and participation in the Taylor program are essential to provide comprehensive planning.

In an effective college, many workers are needed to fulfill the students' needs. The Directors of Student Services strive to help develop a climate where the self-disciplines of social, academic, and spiritual maturity and excellence become the products of commitment to Jesus Christ.

The Development Department is concerned that adequate facilities and financial resources are available for all phases of campus life. In the total scope of operations, communicating is the key—informing friends of Taylor's progress and opportunities through personal consultation, Taylor Club meetings, publications, and the News Bureau.

Robert Stoops, Director of Land and Property Resources; Wilbur Cleveland, University Editor; Edward H. Hermanson, Development Representative; Audrey Simpson, Administrative Assistant for Development

Ronald L. Keller, Director of Admissions and Summer Session; E. Stanley Banker, Registrar

Offices give services, support to students

The offices of Admissions and Registrar exist for the purpose of bringing a student to campus and providing him with opportunities designed both to broaden his understanding as well as develop his specific interest. In addition, these offices assure the student that a record of his achievement always will be available.

The Student Health Center helps meet the physical needs of the students. Staffed by three full time and five part time nurses, the Health Center is open twenty-four hours a day.

The staff of Student Affairs works with the faculty seeking an ideal community where each person becomes a worthy member. Programming is directed toward aiding individuals to grow personally as their similarities and differences interact with those of others in the Taylor community.

Art department makes changes

"Opportunity to Become" is a phrase applicable to the art department's philosophy. While learning fundamental art skills, the student often questions his progress. During capstone, senior art majors choose an area of art, do an indepth study of it, and handle it using whatever method desired. Upon becoming a senior, art majors exhibit their art in the new Chronicle-Tribune gallery through a series of one-man shows. The art student is allowed to become professionally ready for the opportunities outside of the classroom.

Speech, Drama department opens 'Little Theatre'

This year a sparkling new "Little Theatre" was created in the space before known as Shreiner Auditorium. Remodeling of the fire-damaged music building included the construction of a scene shop and costume room and the addition of new lighting equipment, which means that for the first time all the drama facilities are housed in the same building.

The playbill offered a wide variety of drama and periods, beginning with Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest and ending with Grimm's Fairy Tales. Other major productions were A Man for All Seasons by Robert Bolt and Thornton Wilder's The Skin Of Our Teeth.

For the third annual spring tour of the Religious Drama Company, two plays were offered which communicated a message of Christian salvation: Christ in the Concrete City by Phillip Turner and Guenter Rutenborn's The Sign of Jonah. The plays were presented in 25 churches in Indiana and neighboring states.

In addition to intercollegiate debate competition, TU debaters helped sponsor the third Taylor-Blackford High School debate tournament in which 30 varsity and sub-varsity teams from 15 Indiana high schools participated.

Sciences offer Practical study

The Biology and Chemistry departments offer a variety of courses to encompass almost any area of study. Innovations within the department, including the new physiograph which measures body functions, as well as AuSable for nature study, provide the major with new experiences.

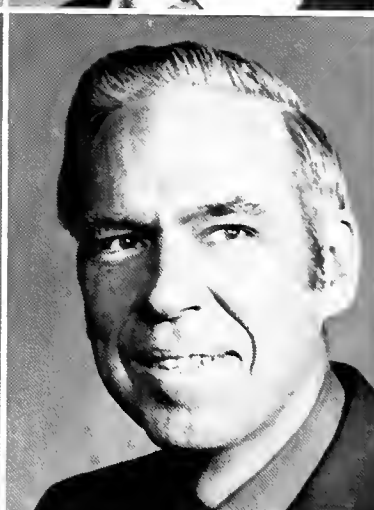

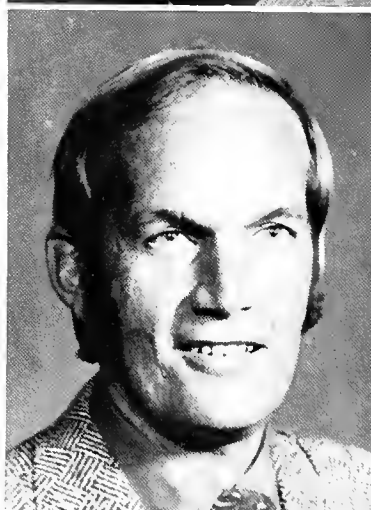

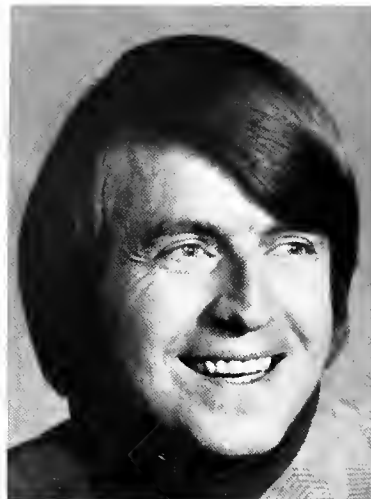

During capstone, senior majors had the opportunity to visit various universities to view their research facilities and graduate programs. They also completed an indepth research paper on a major-related subject of their choice.

Majors become professionals

The Business Department endeavors to expose students to professional situations. During capstone, senior business majors spent one week in New York City visiting various organizations, such as the American and New York Stock Exchanges, McCaffery and McCall Advertising Agency, and Merrill-Lynch. Through experiences such as these, Taylor business majors become better qualified to fill the opportunities available in the world of finance and business.

Students practice writing skill

Through giving students a better understanding of literature and by developing their writing skills, the English Department endeavors to prepare its students for such varied careers as teaching, journalism, copywriting, library science, and other fields.

Regular classes are supplemented by outside clubs and activities in which students are further able to pursue their various areas of interest. Writers Club, the Taylor Literary Magazine, English Symposium, the Ilium, and the Echo are among these.

This year, the seniors enjoyed a capstone course on Myths and Legends in Literature, in which they studied such tales as the legend of King Arthur. Also, as honors course, the faith and learning seminar was sponsored in part by the English Department.

Juniors participated in various practicums during the year. One wrote a library manual; another worked in the copywriting department of an insurance company; and others went to England during the summer to take a course in Romantic literature.

Music department encourages personalized study

The music department found new locations, physically and academically. With the passing of Shreiner Hall, the music center was relocated in a sparkling new facility of practice and class rooms. In the classrooms, students learn theories of composition, skills of performance and the combining of all the talents of musicianship for performing.

A new directive in capstone was sought for senior majors. Advancing from a seminar capstone previously used, senior majors were allowed to explore into various topics of self-expression. Each senior prepared a study of music related topic with the guidance of a faculty advisor. After completing an in-depth search, the topics were shared with other senior majors. The topics ranged from film scoring to evolution of the grand piano.

As a requirement for graduation, senior majors compound their music training into one performance, their senior recital.

PE department introduces many opportunities

The physical education department provides the major with experience in education, therapy, and rehabilitation. As part of the capstone program, seniors had the opportunity to visit Crossroads Rehabilitation Center in Indianapolis and the Marion Veteran's Administration Hospital. A guest lecturer provided senior majors with information concerning the hazards of drug usage. A perceptual motor skills workshop also exposed them to the latest trends in elementary physical education.

Student teaching semester helps to develop skills

Student teaching gives elementary education majors a chance to teach at two different levels. This experience also gives student teachers the chance to develop skills and to evaluate different testing methods. During senior capstone, each major works with one student in reading improvement. Through this, they learn to deal with the different types of reading problems which they may encounter in the future. Endorsements in nursery school and special education were also offered by the Education Department.

Majors study Bible criticism

The Religion Department strives to familiarize the major with certain Bible principles, stressing the application of these principles to life. Bible Literature conveys the theme of "salvation's story to mankind" while the Mission and Camp sections teach students how to relate this message to others.

During capstone, Bible Literature majors studied Bible criticism, while Christian Ed. majors travelled in Nassau with "Lighthouse."

Social Studies provides new perspectives

Through studying history, political science, and geography, social studies majors gain new perspectives which allow them to better evaluate contemporary problems and issues—be it Presidential elections, Indian uprisings, or wars. Senior majors were exposed to several experiences which helped them tie together their four years of study.

Psychology, sociology majors

The sociology department organized a special Soc. 100 class second semester for majors, allowing them to explore in detail the different aspects of sociology.

Senior capstone included ten days in Chicago in conjunction with the Urban Life Center. Students that were a part of the program were exposed to all aspects of the city and were involved in activities relating to their major area of interest.

The psychology department strives to fulfill the needs of the student, whether equipping him for graduate study or a chosen vocation in social service. Lectures, discussions, experimental projects and independent study give the student a thorough background in the science of human behavior.

Math, physics Aids students' Mental growth

The goal of the Math and Physics departments is to prepare students for future research and technological progressions. One way this is reached is through the senior capstone.

Accomplishments of the departments are integrating subject areas, having guest lecturers, and hosting the second annual high school Math Field Day.

Mod. language, Books enhance Communication

The moving of the administrative offices from the basement of the library to the new administration building increased the overall library area for reading, working, and for storing books. All the new shelves were filled immediately because of previous overcrowding. Private study carrels were also added to the new stack area of the library. Technical service, the head librarian's office, the rare book collection, and a study room were also relocated.

The need for communication between people is vital in our world. The language department helps students meet the challenges of communication by providing the skills to cross language barriers. Areas of concentration offered are French, German, and Spanish.

Students can always find a "listening ear" in the office of their head resident.

Head residents Give guidance, Encouragement

An important part of college life at Taylor is residence hall living. Its effectiveness is the responsibility of the head resident. His job is the overall supervision of the halls, which includes anything from assigning roommates to being on call for emergencies. He tries to bridge any gap a student might find in university living by being available when students are in need of a listening ear, advice, counsel, or disciplinary measures. He also encourages the student to develop self-discipline within the new found freedoms of college life. Each head resident is concerned for and strives to get to know each person so that they work together for a better living situation.

Seniors:

You have completed four years of study and have obtained a degree from Taylor University. With this step, you move into a new family . . . the Taylor University Alumni Association.

We are certain that you will use your education and your spiritual maturity for the good of society and the church. We are also confident that you will become an active participant in the Taylor Alumni Program.

May God grant you a rich and purposeful life as you pursue further education or enter your chosen field of service.

reflections '12

At times I sit and think about my old friends—what they were to me, what I was to them; about the things they used to do, about the things we used to do. And about how at one time we were all together.

Reflecting upon the 1972 spring athletic season brings to mind HBCC championships. The track team totally dominated the conference meet, scoring 100 points more than its closest rivals. The team took eleven first places and Coach Glass was selected Coach of the Year. The baseball team under the guidance of Coach Krause captured the league title with an 8-2 record. Dave Griffie was selected on the All-District #21 Team. All conference selections were Griffie, Stan Frantz, Doug Rupp, and Curt White. Steve Reash was selected to be MVP. The golf team finished second in conference, but atoned for this by capturing the district title, in which Bill Thompson shot a 143 to become state medalist. This enabled the team to make their first trip ever to the nationals, where they finished 23rd. Don Odle was selected Coach of the Year and Bill Thompson was all-district, and Curt Knorr was selected all HBCC. Taylor's tennis team participated in the AIA National Tennis Tournament in Kansas City for the second straight year. These outstanding performances enabled Taylor to capture the first Hoosier-Buckeye College Conference All-Sports Award.

Bike-a-thon highlights weekend class competition

This prospective Trojan anticipates the day when he'll be a Bike-a-thon rider.

For years Bike-a-thon has been the climax of Taylathon weekend activities. Even before the winter snows have completely melted, prospective riders can be seen practicing on the "track" in the center of campus. As temperatures rise, so do the number of riders, and the warning call "Bike!" causes a spine-tin-gling thrill for pedestrians as they freeze in their steps. Eight riders for each class are chosen through time trials. Finally after weeks of practicing acceleration, braking, and transferring by riders and pit crews, Taylathon Day arrives. Sixty-four laps, sixty-four aching legs, several breakdowns and penalties later, one team coasts into "victory lane," making all the effort worthwhile. In Taylathon '72, the Class of 1972 demonstrated careful planning, dedication, determination, and expertise in capturing its third consecutive Bike-a-thon victory.

Theme of 1972 youth weekend accents people

Youth Conference for 1972 brought together throngs of anticipating young people from many different areas of the United States. Under the theme of "People Get Ready," Pete Carlson and Linda Kukuk, co-chairmen, introduced high school students to the college campus. Bill Eakin, from Youth for Christ International, held the audience's attention during the weekend meetings. Since the emphasis of the weekend was people, discussion group leaders endeavored to prepare students to show an interest in the needs of their fellowmen. The individual's physical, emotional, and spiritual readiness should be the prime directive of a Christian witness.

Taylor grads Begin search For new goals

The moments of worry, the nights of study, and the years of anticipation are all in the past. Sunday has finally arrived and graduating seniors entered Eastbrook High School for Baccalaureate. The return to campus found seniors enjoying their final meal as Taylor students in the dining hall. That afternoon the 268 graduates returned to Eastbrook to receive their diplomas and to say their final good-bye to classmates and faculty.

Nancy Bost reminisces with friends about her four years at Taylor.

We work, study, and often get tired . . .

. . . of the pressures, tensions and the general "rat race" of school.

We search for some means of releasing our frustrations but soon find that the end of another year has arrived . . .

And thinking back, I sometimes wonder the beginning of the world seen only small pieces of

editor's notes . . .

It's been a long, busy year, but here it is, the 1973 Ilum. As you look through the book, you may notice a few changes from the past years. The 1973 Ilum is a more informal, and I hope, a more personal book. The previous format of the first half of the book has been changed in order to put the book in chronological order and to make it easier for you to follow the year's activities. The physical attributes of the '73 Ilum you can see for yourself. It's the people behind the book that made it what it is. The yearbook you hold in your hands is the finished product of a great deal of work. Without the efforts of the Ilum staff and countless others, this book would not have become a reality. My sincere thanks to all of you . . . Mrs. Marilyn Walker, Ilum adviser, for the many phone calls and meetings she endured . . . Mr. Larry Glaze, our Paragon representative, who spent many hours working and worrying with us . . . Mr. and Mrs. Norm Cook, whose ready camera provided many pictures for us . . . Mr. Wilbur Cleveland, who always had the picture we had somehow forgotten to take . . . Dr. Milo A. Rediger, who helped us out of "sticky" situations . . . Mr. Jules Walker, who took time to shoot Homecoming pictures for us . . . Bob Bowers, and Ken Funk, photography co-editors, who spent the 24 hours before deadlines printing pictures . . . the Echo staff, for overcoming the obstacles of sharing an office with us . . . you, the students of Taylor University, for making the year of 1973 a special one.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Sinclair
Ilum Editor-in-chief
